My name is Chris Baker and I am the founder, owner and manager of the Equivity Network. I am based outside of Daytona Beach, FL and I've been working online since 1998. I handle virtually all aspects of the sites we operate including updates, maintenance, etc. across the network with a few exceptions. Although I am not an award winning author, not even close - really, I will be writing the content for the entire network.

When I'm not working (ok - so inbetween "work breaks"), my interests include watching TV (House, Survivor, CSI, Any Poker related show and reality TV based shows like American Chooper, American Hot Rod, and The Hogans), playing poker (Texas Hold-em and Omaha), spending time with my 3 children & my wife and reading fantasy novels, among other things.

This blog will serve two main purposes:

1. Primarily, it will be a means of announcing Equivity Network related news and distributing Equivity Network related information.
2. Secondly, it will be a place where I can comment on issues related to us, our business, etc.

We'll probably get into some off topic stuff once in a while, as well.

So, there's the intro post. Any questions, feel free to ask. Thanks for stopping by.
